ARDING OPENS WORLD COURT FIGHT

RIAN COMMITS ICIDE; DROWNS N QUARRY HOLE

John Pozak, 50, a resident of Vulcan street, committed suicide some time late last night by jumping into the old Mussey quarry hole near the Elyria Iron & Steel Co.'s plant.

Keeps His Promise

Word was sent to the police station by Steve Kis, with whom Pozak lived that the man was missing and he believed had drowned himself. Kis stated that a few days ago Pozak said he was going to drown himself in the quarry hole, and last night he came home intoxicated and when Mrs. Kis scolded him he repeated the statement. He left the house about midnight and that was the last seen of him.

Corbet Southam was sent to the quarry hole and soon found the man's hat floating on the water. He returned and with a fireman and Detective Zarnke took grappling hooks and going to the spot dragged for the body. Zarnke left the others and went up the quarry hole a ways and made a cast being rewarded by snagging the body with the first cast.

According to friends Pozak worked for the Columbia Steel Co. and has been despondent for some time. He has a wife and several children in Hungary, and has lived here for about two years.

Husband Also Missing

When the body was being taken out of the water a young woman with a little girl in her arms sat on the bank. She said to a reporter, "I'm afraid to look for my husband is missing for several days and I'm afraid it's him." Asked who he was, she refused to state, but was much relieved when she learned it was not her man who was dead.

REJECTION OF STREET PAVING IS PROTESTED

Resolution Adopted to Be Sent to Governor on Arbitrary and Arrogant Attitude of Board of Control

LORAIN, April 24.—The meeting held at the council chamber last night that was called by the council to inquire why bids for paving Brownell street, Long avenue, and 20th street had been rejected by the board of control. A large delegation of citizens were present and urged that the rejection be reconsidered and the bids awarded. It developed that Service Director L. A. Snell, of the board of control, and City Engineer Miller did not agree with Mayor Grall, and then Safety Director Harry Shiff got up and said that he and Grall were responsible for the action taken. At this point City Solicitor Grills announced that the board of control had no authority to reconsider the bids.

Before adjourning a resolution of protest was adopted, a copy of which will go to Governor Donahey, protesting against the arbitrary and arrogant attitudes of the board of control and especially of the mayor, in blocking needed improvements in Lorain.

Director Shiff volunteered that he and the mayor wanted to let all paving contracts at one time as a means of economy, and that the bids would be lower. Engineer Miller denied that statement, and said the next bids would be higher than the ones rejected.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT IN OHIO GOOD

Commissioner Haynes Is Optimistic and Declares That Outcome Never Looked Better

COLUMBUS, April 24.—The Ohio Federal Prohibition Office has been advised by Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes that occasion for genuine optimism in the ultimate outcome of prohibition enforcement was never better.

The progress in the way of the states assuming their share of the responsibility under the concurrent section of the 18th amendment is most gratifying. When state governments write in relieving the federal authorities, through governors, prosecuting attorneys, sheriffs, state constabulary and other local agencies of the minor details of enforcement, leaving federal agents free to take care of the larger violations, such as the smuggling problem, conspiracy cases, counterfeiting, illegal withdrawals and wholesale drug violation, great strides along enforcement lines are certain. Furthermore, successful padlock proceedings, which are being more generally instituted in all sections of the country, together with convictions of higher-ups, are having a salutory effect and moulding public atmosphere in a most helpful fashion.

Many Convictions

Speaking of liquor convictions, 21,430 were secured in Federal courts alone (not including convictions under State codes) during the past year. Of these, over 2[illegible],000 entered pleas of "guilty" while a verdict of "guilty" was rendered in over 200 cases.

During the same period, nearly 300 breweries were reported for violations and more than 100 brewery permits were revoked.

During the past year less than 3,000,000 proof gallons of spirits other than alcohol were withdrawn for medical use, nearly 7,000,000 proof gallons less than the previous year.

During the past year, there were approximately 200,000 gallons of spirits seized and destroyed and nearly 300,000 gallons seized and not destroyed. Gallons of malt liquor seized and destroyed 2,2[illegible],174.17 seized and not destroyed 486,702.05 gallons. There were 1563 automobiles seized, with a total value of $1,709,197.65. There were 119 boats and launches seized with a total value of $2,369,866.38. There were 60,019 arrests.

There was an increase of approximately 100 per cent in the number of convictions secured for violations of the Harrison Narcotic Act as compared with the previous year.

PAROLE LORAIN YOUTHS IN THEFT

Son of Police Chief and Companion Given Freedom For Stealing and Wrecking Elyria Auto

Bernard Herren and Howard Walker, Lorain youths who were indicted by the last grand jury on a charge of grand larceny and driving a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, were paroled yesterday afternoon by Judge W. B. Thompson, after they had entered a plea of guilty.

Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence Webber opposed paroling them in view of the sending of other young ment to the reformatory for practically the same offense, and called J. H. Brown and others who testified that in their opinion no exception should be made in this case.

For the defense Superintendent Boone, of the Lorain schools testified to the good character of the accused, and believed that the boys had been severely punished by what had taken place, and that he thought they should be paroled.

J. F. Burke, whose car was stolen and wrecked by the defendants, was called to the stand. He told the court he was glad he did not have to sit in the case and have to decide it. He expressed the belief that the reformatory was not a good place to send young men who had previously had a good record. There were one or two other witnesses who testified along the same line, and there were a number of others who were ready to testify.

Judge Thompson stated that he did not like to send such boys to the reformatory, although it had been done in some cases. He did not expect that he would be able to please all the people in the county while he was on the bench. He discussed the circumstances in the case pretty thoroughly, and concluded by stating that he had decided to parole them.

Attorney Chas. Adams, Lorain, and D. A. Myers, Elyria, were attorneys for the defense, and made pleas of leniency.

This morning Municipal Judge Strenick and Officer George Knapp, of Lorain, appeared at the clerk's office and procured necessary papers regarding the parole of the two young men. They also had with them photographs and Bertillion measurements as required by law. On procuring them they left for Mansfield to file the papers and photographs as the law requires.

Sobul is an attorney in Cleveland.

The cases will be contested, and F. M. Stevens will act for the defendants and Prosecutor Lawrence Webber and G. A. Resek, of Lorain will represent the state.

TOLEDO, April 24.—Police today are scouring northwestern Ohio for a prominent broker, having offices in the Spitzer building, who obtained bonds of the city of Norwalk valued at $53,720, after giving a certified check to City Auditor Cook, of Norwalk, for the amount.

The check, drawn on the Ohio Savings Bank of Toledo, was marked "Not sufficient funds," when presented for payment. Police and bank officials say certificate was forged.

It is further stated that after the Toledo broker had secured the bonds, he resold them to a Cleveland bank, which, is said to have sold them to customers.

"Never saw anybody so anxious to get to the works," commented Patrolman Meyer as he stopped the youthful speeder.

NEW YORK, April 24.—President Harding threw down the gauntlet this afternoon on his world court proposal in addressing the American Publishers.

In a vigorous speech, which constitutes his reply to administration critics, Mr. Harding reaffirmed faith in the court, denied emphatically that his administration is "flirting" with the league of nations, and challenged his party to carry America into the court or admit that republican pledges for the last twenty years are merely broken jromises.

Won't Abandon Court

The president served notice that he has no intention of abandoning the court because of the opposition to it within his party. On the contrary, he extolled the merits of the tribunal as containing the highest hopes for permanent world peace and announced his intention of going through with it—even at the cost of republican harmony.

At the same time, the president declared with unusual emphasis that the United States is not now and will never be headed into the league of nations so long as he is at the helm of government.

"This administration," asserted Mr. Harding, "does not propose to enter now, by the side door, the back door or the cellar door. I have no unseemly comment to offer on the league. If it is serving the old world helpfully, more power to it. But it is not for us. The senate has so declared, the executive has so declared, the people have so declared. Nothing could be more decisively stamped with finality."

To make his opposition to American entrance into the league itself even more emphatic, Mr. Harding asserted that even if the senate experienced a change of heart and tried to put America into the league, he, as chief executive would not allow it.

The president's acceptance on the court issue of the challenge of the republican irreconcilables was bold and definite. He frankly recognized the bolting element of his party, and he was equally frank in asserting that if this was to be the break, then let it come.

Has Long Been Pledged

The question of American adherence to the world court, Mr. Harding said, is one that transcends party lines. He reminded his audience of publishers at the outset that the republican platforms for twenty years have pledged the party to the world court ideal. Then he said:

"I would not have it thought that I hold this question paramount to all others confronting our government. I do not hold it a menace to the unity of any political party. It is not to be classed as a party question, but if any party, repeatedly advocating a world court is to be rended by the suggestion of an effort to perform in accordance with its pledges, it needs a new appraisal of its assets."

The president blamed "excessive foes" of the league and "excessive friends of the league," for much of the turmoil and stress which has sprung up around the court proposal, "muddying the political waters," he called it.

"Perhaps," he said, "the court is not all that some advocates of the court plan would have it, but it is in a large measure the fulfillment of an aspiration we have long boasted.

No League Affilication.

"Excessive friends of the league have beclouded the situation by their unwarranted assumption that it is a move toward league membership. Let them disabuse their minds, because there is no such thought among us.

"And the situation is likewise beclouded by those who shudder excessively when the league is mentioned, and who assume entanglement as unavoidable.

"If, in spite of these statements, uttered with full deliberation, there are excessive and unfounded hopes on the one hand, or utterly unjustifiable apprehensions on the other, I know of no word fittingly to apply."

The president recognized one "political bugbear" in his proposal—the six votes to one which the British government will have in the election of court justices. He recalled that as a senator in the league of nations fight he had voted against this disparity. Then he said:

"But in an appraisal now I do not hesitate to say that if other great powers can accept without fear the voting strength of the British dominations, when they are without ties of race to minimize international rivalries and suspicions, we ought, in view of the natural ties of English speaking kinship, feel ourselves free from danger."

This is the whole story of the court matter in a nutshell, the president said.

Williams, starting his twelfth season as a National leaguer, has been the star of the team so far.

ARE YOUR SPARE ROOMS RENTED?

If you have noticed our classified columns, you have read the ads which request rooms for the working men of the factories. This is an unusual request but indicates that work is picking up and that the housing facilities of Elyria are diminishing. Good times are just ahead of us.

WHY NOT PROFIT FROM YOUR ENTIRE HOME?

Owing to the fact that many of the household supporters are finding it harder to make both ends meet, why not fill up those unused bedrooms which are ordinarily held for company, and assist in enlarging the family purse?

Many housewives make the largest part of their "spare spendings" from keeping roomers and boarders. If you wish to assist in making the struggle for a livlihood less hard we would suggest that you advertise your housing facilities in the classified columns of The Chronicle-Telegram.

Now that housecleaning time is here why not rid yourself of many of the antique and in-the-way articles which are in your closets, attics, cellars and workshops?

A three line ad in the Chronicle-Telegram will cost only 35c and the 35c will be well spent.

MIGHT BE CAREFUL

We notice that the Soldiers' and Sailors' Legion have asked for Chief Justice Taft's dismissal from his position on the Supreme Court by reason of the fact that he receives an annuity of $10,000 a year from the estate of Andrew Carnegie. If this request is made as against the precedent of having members upon the National Supreme Court receive money from such estates we are in hearty accord with it.

If it is believed that ex-President Taft would be more susceptible to such influences than any other man we believe that the suggestion is absurd. Any man in a judicial position should be kept as free as possible from any influence that might affect his judgment in any matter brought before him. We seriously doubt whether an annuity from the estate of Mr. Carnegie would militate against the fairness of any able judge. At the same time we must recognize the dangers that lie in permitting members of the Supreme Court of our nation to receive remuneration regularly from any sources other than from property which they have themselves accumulated, or which has been accumulated prior to their going on the Bench, or from the salaries which the Government itself pays them which is reasonably adequate for their standard of living.

The Supreme Court judge receives $17,500 a year. This is not a large salary for men in their station, but we believe it is adequate. If it is not, it should be increased. The principle of opposition to outside remuneration we believe is a sound one, but on the other hand an annuity from the Carnegie estate and in the hands of Mr. Taft would be as little likely to accomplish injury as money from any similiar source in the hands of any man would be likely to do.

A PROPHECY FULFILLED

The better part of a century has passed since Henry Clay predicted that the outside world would come to the mountains of Kentucky bringing the gifts of civilization and progress. Only during the last two decades, however, has his prophecy begun to come true. Before that time the mountaineers lived in the backwash of the pioneer movement, isolated by their high hills from the rest of the country. They looked upon all outsiders as "furriners," and the rest of the country, in turn, thought of them as rough, hardy folk, fond of feuds and "moonshine," who had furnished many soldiers to the Union cause during the Civil War, but who still lived the life of backwoodsmen.

Thanks to the devotion of educators and missionaries and to the generosity of people of their own States and of the North, schools and colleges have been introduced, and the mountaineers are learning from the outside world. Already the work of Berea College and of Lincoln University is well known, and the public has heard of the story of the Pine Mountain Settlement School and other similar institutions. Book learning, health and inspiration have been brought to the mountain people, and in return they have thrown new light on the history of our country and race.

The teachers who have gone to them have brought back ballads and songs of the England and Scotland of two centuries ago and have learned that in these Southern highlands the speech of old England, rather than of modern America, is still spoken.—The New York Times.

OUR OWN BUSINESS

We heard lots, a few years ago, about prison-camps, and the treatment received in them. That was war-time, and the camps were those of our enemies. It will be a salutary thing for the condition of our American penal institutions, if the stories recently featured in the news items of our daily papers, concerning happenings in certain of our own American, peace-time prison-camps, can fan to the same white heat, the righteous indignation and pity, which stirred the country at the stories of the German prison-camps.

Conditions in those camps were beyond our control. Those of which we read today are not. Martin Tabert will not have died in vain if the publicity given to the circumstances of his death lend impetus to a thorough investigation and reorganization, where needed, of our penal institutions the country over.

Baseball came along first, and then we saw a jumping rope, and some marbles, and now even the weather man knows it is spring. Why didn't we think of that sooner? Robins don't pull the trick any more. Next year lets get out the hop-scotch stuff and the horseshoes about March twenty-first. Why wait till the end of April?

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

CALLS CHESTER GRANT "EXPLOITATION OF VICTIM OF OUR POLICY"

James W. Gerard former Ambassador to Germany, made public recently a letter to Secretary Hughes protesting on behalf of the American Committee for the Independence of Armenia against sections of the Chester concessions regarded as detrimental to Armenian interests. Mr. Gerard pictured America as demanding "an opportunity to exploit the expropriated estate of the victims of our policy."

JAMES W. GERARD

"I have before me," wrote Mr. Gerard, "a full copy of the Chester contract, dated 1913, and a summary of the revised contract. The contract provides for the construction of railways to run through the Armenian Provinces of Erzerum, Van and Bitlis, and the exploitation of all the mineral resources within twenty miles on each side of the proposed railways. Of the twenty-one known varieties of mineral resources within these provinces, the oil deposits are reputed to be the most considerable, and, according to some authorities, they are more valuable than those of Mosul. Quite obviously, the exploitation of these oil deposits is the principal aim of the concessionaries.

Armenia Called "Barren."

"One of the principal reasons for the rejection by the Senate of the Armenian mandate on May 24, 1920, and of a substitute measure proposed on the same day by Senator Hitchcock, to make a loan of $50,000,000 to Armenia, to be administered by an American commission was that Armenia was a barren country.

"By a letter to the President dated Nov. 8, 1922 I set forth the moral and legal grounds upon which rested America's responsibility for the plight of Armenia and asked him to fulfill some of the pledges which he himself made to Armenia. In reply he said that * * everything which may be done will be done in seeking to protect the Armenian people and preserve to them the rights which the Sevres Treaty undertook to bestow.

"Promise Not Fulfilled."

"But our representatives at Lausanne failed to do anything of a serious character toward the fulfillment of the President's promise. They conveyed to the Turks the impression that they might speak, in a perfunctory way, for the Armenians. They did speak, 'unofficially and 'in principle' in favor of assigning a 'refuge' to the Armenians. The Turkish press of Constantinople commended our representatives for the services which they rendered the Turks at Lausanne. Their services included, no doubt, the part which they played toward the burial of the Armenian case.

"And now we demand an opportunity to exploit the expropriated estate of the victims of our policy. We will not discharge our obligations to them because they cannot enforce them; we will not assume any responsibility for them, but we will cash in on their misfortunes.

"I have advised the delegation of the Armenian Republic, whose President signed the Sevres Treaty for Armenia, that the nonratification and proposed abrogation of that treaty by the powers do not affect the rights of Armenia under it."

POEMS THAT LIVE

SONG.

Sing little bird, oh, sing!
How sweet thy voice and clear!
How fine the airy measures ring,
The sad old world to cheer!

Bloom, little flower, oh, bloom!
Thou markest glad the day;
A scented torch, thou dost illume
The darkness of the way.

Dance, little child, oh, dance!
While sweet the small birds sing
And flowers bloom fair, and every glance
Of sunshine tells of spring.

Oh! bloom, and sing, and smile.
Flower, bird, and child, and make
The sad old world forget awhile
Its sorrow for your sake!

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ADMIRAL ROBERT E. COONTZ

Recent changes in the high naval posts, approved by President Harding, will make Admiral Robert E. Coontz commander in chief of the U. S. fleet June 30, when the changes become effective. He is now chief of naval operations.

ADMIRAL COONTZ

Robert Edward Coontz was born at Hannibal, Mo., June 11, 1864. He graduated from the Military Academy at Annapolis in 1885, entered the navy service as an ensign in 1887, became a junior lieutenant in 1896, a lieutenant in 1899, a lieutenant commander in 1905, commander in 1909 captain in 1912 and a rear admiral in 1917.

Shortly after leaving the naval academy, Coontz entered the Alaskan service where he remained for six years, becoming proficient as a pilot in those waters. It was in Alaska that he met the girl who in 1890 was to become his bride—Miss Augusta Cohen, of Sitka.

Admiral Coontz was executive officer of the battleship Nebraska on the voyage of the fleet around the world in 1908, commandant of midshipmen, U. S. Naval Academy, 1910-11; governor of Guam, 1912-13; commanding officer of the Georgia, 1913-15; winning first gunnery trophy, appointed commander of the navy yard, Puget Sound, July 20, 1915.

Admiral Coontz won medals in the Spanish-American war and in the Philippine insurrection. For a time in 1918 he commanded the Seventh division of the Atlantic fleet. Then he was named assistant for naval operations. He was appointed chief October 24, 1919.

HAS SOLUTION FOR FUEL PROBLEMS

Roger W. Babson, The Statistician, Would Force Operators to Compete and Protect Public From Combination of Either Miners or Owners

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., April 24.—Roger W. Babson, statistician and business authority, has some very decided views on the coal situation—and he has a solution.

The coal famine is now over. Everyone is now able to get all the coal he needs.

But is the coal problem settled? "Decidedly not," says Roger W Babson, the statistician who demands that the coal problem be solved this spring when it can be solved and that we do not wait until next winter when it will be too late to do anything but rush around feverishly to try to get enough coal to tide us through the zero weather.

Like Leaky Roof

"We are a lot like the man who had a leak in his roof," says Mr. Babson. "When it wasn't raining it didn't need fixing. When it was raining he couldn't fix it. As a result we have repeated tie-ups; in the spring, scare talk by the coal dealers; in the summer, strikes; and in the winter, the actual shortage. The attached table will give you a picture of the situation as it is. You will note that there hasn't been a single year in which strikes and lockouts have not caused loss in coal production which meant higher costs to the consumer.

"It now looks as though history were going to repeat itself again. We are threatened with another coal strike this spring.

"If it is allowed to go into effect, it will spell another shortage and more suffering next year.

"Six such serious tie-ups in the last twenty-five years are a plenty and it is possible that we may arrive at the solution of the problem by analyzing the cause of these several tie-ups. In studying them, I find that they are surprisingly alike. In each case miners and operators have had what they thought was a real grievance and real difference. In each case the Government has attempted to deal with the problem by appointing a commission.

"In 1897 public sympathy was largely with the miners who had a just grievance. As we get down to 1922, however, we find the miners becoming quite able to take care of themselves. There is little choice between the miners and operators as to which was the aggrieved and which the aggressor. Both now have powerful fighting machines and both apparently are actuated by the same motive, to get all they can for themselves and to give as little as they can. The third party in argument, the great consuming public, has not done so very well. In every single instance on record it has taken most of the beating and has meekly appointed a commission to patch up the quarrel between the other two parties. After being mauled and bled and robbed by a half dozen operators and a few thousand miners, the hundred-million consumers have begged Congress to appoint a commission, simply because the thing always had been done and it is assumed, therefore, that it must always be done.

Summary of Strifes

"I personally do not know much about what went on inside the commission meetings. One can only judge by results, and it is evident that little or nothing has been accomplished.

"In 1897, for instance, a compromise was made between operator and miner, on September 3rd. Wages were increased 20 per cent and miners and operators agreed to meet in January 1898 for the purpose of forming a wage scale and making an annual contract. The strike was very successful from the miners' point of view.

"In 1902 through the mediation of President Roosevelt the strike was settled on October 23rd, with the understanding that questions in dispute would be submitted to a commission. A 10 per cent increase in wages and a reduction of hours were granted to the miners.

"In 1906 the strike was finally settled through agreement between operators and miners themselves. Not through a third party.

"On April 1st, 1910, 300,000 miners went out. The agreements were submitted to the miners and rejected. The strike was finally settled on September 8th of that year. A slight increase was granted and certain other concessions. The miners union paid out $674,000 in strike benefits and mines were idle from April 1st to August 8th.

"A conference was called on October 16th, 1919 in an effort to prevent a strike, but the operators refused to negotiate as long as the strike order was in force. The miners' contract which really did not expire until April 1920, was disregarded. The President's appeal to the strikers failed. The Attorney General issued an order restraining union officials from putting the strike into effect. This failed. An injunction demanded that the officers rescind the strike order, the order was rescinded but the miners went on strike November 1st, just the same. On December 10th an offer from the President direct to the miners granted 14 per cent immediate increase and question of further increase to be determined by the commission.

Results All The Same

"The story from the public's point of view has been the same in all these cases, exorbitant prices, poor quality, suffering and no end of inconvenience.

"After studying this record, and after having shivered through a severe winter, one may feel a little skeptical as to what our present coal commission is going to recommend. So far it seems to be running true to form. Last September a commission was appointed by the President to investigate and find all the facts that would have a bearing on the solution of coal problem. In a report to Congress on January 15th of this year, it took care not to commit itself to any definite recommendations. It did find that one fundamental cause for instability in bituminous coal mining was surplus of both mines and miners.

"The other findings of the commission indicate that it is really analysing the problem, but it looks as though it must suffer the fate of most such commissions.

Now there are three of us in this coal problem. Both miners and operators have been loud in proclaiming their rights and in demanding that their particular pet schemes be enforced. I should like to propose a platform for the most important member in this argument, the general public.

"The operators' arguments boil down to the contents of the present method. It is apparently just as profitable to do business half of the year at twice the profit and take a vacation for the other six months as it is to work the year round at a normal profit.

"The miners' plan is ingenious and well calculated insofar as the welfare of the miner is concerned They would have the Government buy all the coal mines at a figure which they set at $4,500,000,000 and would then have the Government carry on operations and sell coal to the public. The scheme involves much machinery for scientific determination of costs, price fixings, and similar other activities. Mine wages would become a political issue which would be very fine for the miners. In addition to this fact, such a plan would eliminate competition and all necessity for progress and economy in the industry. Coal, to be sure, might be sold to the public at a lower price, only to leave a huge deficit which must be made up in increased taxes In the final accounting it probably would cost you and I just as much or more than it does at present. No government can operate a business as efficiently as a private owner. Hence, from the consumers' standpoint, the proposition to have the people buy the coal mines is not attractive. They already have had enough of Government operation in connection with the railroads, the building and operation of ships, and the various other interests in which the Government took a hand during the war.

The Problem

"What the consumer is interested in is getting coal at a fair price when he needs it. Everyone who has studied the coal problem will agree that the seat of the trouble lies in the fact that competition has been squeezed out of the industry. The reason all of these troubles arise is because the natural laws which govern other lines of business have been blocked On the one hand they have been thwarted through the organization of labor, on the other hand by the combination of the owners. This, moreover, is the principal argument against government purchase of the coal mines, for such a plan instead of increasing competition would bar it out entirely. The real problem, therefore, is to employ government authority only so far as it is necessary to make the industry subject to economic laws, the law of supply and demand and the law of competition.

Public's Solution

"How then can we put competition into the coal business? The first step must be to secure from the Government a Commission or Board which will have the authority to act as a referee for the public in all arguments arising within the industry. It must be empowered by the Federal Government to enforce its rulings. As a second step, the mines should be divided into two parts which will be approximately equal as far as their producing capacity is concerned. Then by public decree, if you please, let the mines in one half be operated as union mines under a closed shop agreement, but let the mines in the other half be kept on an open shop basis. Then let the two groups show by their own operation which plan is the better

"The operators claim that the more efficient mines are the open shop mines, whereas the miners claim that the most efficient plan is the closed shop and the tight union. The public does not know which is right, but it does know that when either group secures complete control it becomes inefficient, careless, and arrogant. So long as there is real and fair competition, both sides are kept on their toes. If it is really true that the open shop plan is more efficient than the closed shop, then the open shop mines will gradually get the greater part of the country's business. The same will be true if the miners can demonstrate that their plan is the better.

"An Interstate Commerce Commission has helped greatly in solving our transportation problems and insuring service for the public. A similar body as referee with power to enforce its rulings would do much to insure real competition and, therefore, good service in the coal industry."

Prohibition Enforcement

Death Rate Declines

From figures obtained from the U. S. Census Bureau, the states which were wet before national prohibition showed a decline in the death rate from alcoholism of 86 per cent from the 1917 figure. The states which were dry before national prohibition did not show this remarkable decline, but when the figure for the first dry year in these states is compared with the last wet years we find a similar startling decrease.

The plan of dividing the country into eighteen divisional areas, each having a mobile force has been in operation just one year. The reports show conclusive evidence that the general agent's force is proving a great success. This plan has the advantage of allowing the experienced agents a greater scope of territory to apply methods in various sections of the country which have proven effective elsewhere. When the plan was inaugurated, they had a force of 250 agents. Today it is almost doubled in efficiency and productivity.

Last month the force had a total of 1623 cases, which was 400 more than the best previous months.

Convict Higher-Ups

Convictions of "higher-ups" in recent months clearly demonstrate that officials and influential citizens cannot knowingly wink at the violation of any statute of the United States if there can be any different degree of responsibility among citizens for the observance of the law, an official should be even more guilty than those of whom society expects less, for he not only does an injustice to himself, but sets an example to those about him, frequently employees which only encourages further violations, and sets in motion harmful influences which go on and on When men of standing and influence do these things which they know to be in defiance of the law and Constitution the [illegible] reason for grave concern Admittedly, such practices make the work more difficult and bring an odium upon officials rather than upon the law.

Discusses Other Matters.

Nearly all of the president's address, delivered to newspaper publishers attending the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, dealt with the international court issue. Near the close, however, Mr. Harding briefly discussed domestic matters.

He reaffirmed his position in favor of a powerful American merchant marine, and asserted "If we can not sell (our ships) we will operate, and operate aggressively" It would be a "small administration," he said, that would allow itself in a fit of pique to sacrifice the government's great shipping interests merely because the senate would not approve its program.

The president also paid his respects to the decadence of the American political system which he attributed as due in no small measure to the growth of the primary system.

"We have gotten away from the representative system," he said. "We have come to the time when a party platform is regarded by too many men in public life as [illegible] important than a group of [illegible] and groups or blocs are [illegible] serve group interests while contempt for party caucus and conference has sent party loyalty pretty much into the discard

HALL BEQUEST INCOME SMALLER BY $100,000

OBERLIN, April 24.—For the last three years Oberlin College has faced a serious financial condition due to the shrinkage of the income from the bequest of Charles M Hall.

From a peak income of $194,500 received in 1918, the returns from the stock held in trust for Oberlin College gradually shrunk to $84,500, and remained at this figure until this spring, when a very slight increase has been promised.

That Oberlin College has succeeded in surviving three years on an income reduced by more than $100,000 a year is due to the drastic cuts in the college budget and generous but temporary aid from guarantors and the General Education Board.

"Do I have to pay it?" asked the prisoner.

"Certainly," said his honor.

"Judge, I just can't do it. I never saw $1000 in all my life," replied Lucy.

"Then you will have to go to jail," remarked the judge as the prisoner was led back to her cell.

HOW TO PUT A "KICK" IN IT

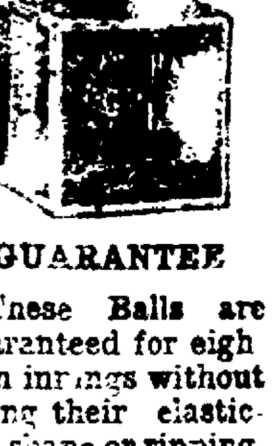

—A tip for "wets" and "drys!"

We are all liable to feel "out of sorts" at times—need something with a "kick" in it to clear the brain, brighten the eye, put "pep" in the system.

Best way to do this is to take—with, or without, a "chaser"—that harmless yet thoroughly efficient family medicine, Beecham's Pills.

"Two for adults and one for children" is the phrase of health that has meant good digestion and a clear system to countless healthy, happy people the world over for the past 80 years.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Revelations of a Wife

I MOVED slightly to one side as Dicky put himself between me and the small sleek man whom the flamboyant Mrs. Marks with such patent naive pride, had just introduced as her husband.

I was oddly, tensely curious to note every detail of the appearance of these queer new neighbors. I was also anxious, if possible, to mitigate the intense frigidity which Dicky was displaying toward them. I knew his dislike of anything common or underbred or pushing, and Mr. and Mrs. Marks indubitably possessed and were exhibiting all three of these qualities.

But I also realized what Dicky's masculine impatience and quick temper would have scorned to consider—that these people were our nearest neighbors, neighbors also in an unusually intimate sense, because of our being compelled to share a common entrance and hall, and that it was far better not to antagonize them with any manner which they could construe as snobbishness.

"Get a Move on, Nell."

With a little bound of my pulses I realized that the diminutive Mr. Marks not only had correctly gauged Dicky's protective movement and curt manner, but that he resented them. His beady black eyes darted from Dicky's face to mine, and then rested malevolently upon his wife's face, with her vermilion lips and thin line of plucked eyebrows standing out grotesquely from the rest of her rouged and powdered mask.

"Keep your shirt on," she advised him with such hearty good humor back of the inelegance, and so infectious a twinkle in her china-blue eyes, that shocked as I was, I had hard work to keep my lips from quirking into a smile. "We're going right away."

She turned to me with a broad, friendly grin.

"Me and Petey, we always do some of our marketing around this time," she said expansively, "and seeing as you're new to the neighborhood, I thought maybe you'd like to have me do some errands for you. I know all the places around here, and they don't any of 'em put nothing over on me. I'll tell the pop-eyed world. So when you want me to show you the ropes, just give me a wireless, and I'll be on the job. Is there anything you want tonight?"

"My Petey's in the—"

"Not a thing," Dicky said curtly, but I moved toward Mrs. Marks with a disarming smile.

"You are most kind to think of me," I said in as friendly fashion as I could manage, "and some day I shall be delighted to take advantage of your offer."

"I'll be there with sleigh bells on whenever you're ready," she responded. "Help me on with my coat, Petey, that's a good kid, and don't be stiff."

The saturnine Petey, thus adjured, unfolded from his arm the most gorgeous fur cloak I had seen in many a day and coiled it around his large lady. Its lustrous folds of real seal circled almost to her feet, while its immense collar and deep wide cuffs were of the finest quality of mink. Then he shrugged himself into an overcoat whose trimmings of seal were as elaborate and costly as the fur of his wife's coat.

Then he muttered a surly "So long," and started for the door.

"Ain't my coat the cat's whiskers?" Mrs. Marks demanded with childish pleasure as she saw the involuntary admiring glance I had given the gorgeous wrap, really good for—the best—are an unsatisfied longing with me. "You see, my Petey's in the—"

"Tobb—" It is the only interpretation I can give of the queer snarling noise which her spouse made in his throat at this juncture.

Whatever its significance, it was singularly effective, for Mrs. Marks gave a quick frightened glance at him, another at Dicky and me, and scuttled toward the door.

Dicky advanced rigidly and shut it after them, but we could hear from the hall outside a quick, frightened, high-pitched:

"Oh, Petey, I didn't!" and a low guttural growl that was like the snarl of a suddenly aroused wild animal.

Then the outer door slammed, and Dicky and I were left facing each other in angry astonishment.

And for the purse of the large estate, a larger mower, to be propelled by the accustomed arms of the gardener, or by the mower's own power.

He said that many firms did not have the stocks which they advertised to sell, but got the purchasers' money, which they held while dickering for the sale of other stock.

Rheumatism Relief--25c.

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), Are Helping Thousands Who Tried Expensive Things Without Result. It's Guaranteed.

There are three vital processes of human existence,—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of waste.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism,—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons,—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body?

Think of this, if it explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the system. You've tried the expensive medicines and doctors, now make the real test. You'll get results this time. Just try it. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

HEARTACHES AND JOYS OF BEAUTIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., April —Out in Sedalia, Mo., they'll tell you that Miss Marian E. Jones was one of the best looking women that the corn belt ever produced.

Miss Jones is no longer in Sedalia. She left there to come here as the private secretary to Dr. Sawyer, personal physician to president Harding. Now she has just been chosen maid of honor on the staff of Maj. Gen. Archibald Pearson.

As such she will attend the annual national reunion of the United Confederate Veterans to be held in Los Angeles. And out in Sedalia they'll tell you that she won't have to take a back seat for any movie queens.

CINCINNATI, O., April — Mabel McCabe, actress and her husband, Victor E. Murray, are the principals in a little divorce controversy here that is arousing considerable interest.

Murray, suing for divorce, avers that his wife married him simply and solely to make him a stepping stone to her goal for more money and then left him after she had achieved her purpose, causing him many large gobs of anguish.

Miss McCabe says it's simply horrid of her husband to make those mean assertions, denies them and declares that if he had worked and been serious she wouldn't have thought of leaving him. So there!

PITCHBURG, Mass., April — Pauline Goderre, a modern young miss of nineteen, and decidedly pretty, who wears her trousers tucked in her goloshes, has been disappointed in love.

Disappointed just $25,000 worth. As the disappointee, she has filed suit against Daniel Conners, the alleged disappointer, for heart balm in the form of cold, round dollars to replace the alleged loss of his warm affections.

She charges that he asked her to marry him and then changed his mind. Now any jury ought to know that it's the privilege of the woman, and the woman alone, to do the mind changing act.

DONAHEY KILLS MORE MEASURES

COLUMBUS, April 24.—Four more bills sent back to the legislature disapproved by Governor Donahey, bring the total of vetoes to date to 54.

The latest measures to feel the veto are the Talientire bill, attempting to transfer from the superior court of Cincinnati to the common pleas court of Hamilton county, power to appoint trustees of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad; the Jenkins bill, which would have prevented anyone but American citizens from obtaining contracts for highway or public works construction; the Gifford bill, authorizing county commissioners to construct sidewalks in territory adjacent to cities and the Lipp bill, amending the law relating to the release of persons from hospitals for the insane by habeas corpus proceedings.

SUPREME COURT TO HEAR CASE IN MARK PURCHASE

COLUMBUS, April 24.—The state supreme court today decided to hear the case on appeal of Francis Monozewski, who, on November 28, 1919, deposited $827.65 in the Kionowski Savings Bank, Cleveland for the purchase of 42,000 marks to be remitted to a Warsaw, Poland bank.

AWARDED $82 VERDICT

A number of cases were set for trial this morning, but only one of them was ready when the time came although a jury was on hand ready to serve. The case of R. H. Prestine against Carl Lenzman, was placed on trial and a jury waived. Judge Webber gave a verdict for $82.48 and the jury was sent home.

"JUST A LOVE NEST, COZY AND WARM," SINGS THIS HAPPY BRIDAL COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Norris, snapped on their way to their "love nest."

Lester Norris, rising young cartoonist, and his bride, who was Miss Dellora Angell, are now settled in their $50 a month "love nest" in St. Charles, Ill., where Mrs. Norris says she's going to "show folks" that she can be a model housewife. She is heiress in her own right to a part of the John W. Gates millions, but says that this will make no difference in her plans.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

BY ROY K. MOULTON

THE WELLSPRING

When fresh young voices laugh and call
Through the dim, leafy woods,
And dancing rivulets leap and fall
Amid green solitudes,
Then hidden music seems to start,
Upwelling from some secret heart
That throbs in every joyous thing—
In throat of bird, in glancing wing.
For round us lies the mystic love
Whence bliss immortal flows—
That guides the flight of homing dove,
That opens the velvet rose;
That in a maiden's starry eyes
Kindles the light of astral skies,
And, like a meadow dew-impearled,
Breathes sweetness on the morning world.

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement, which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is extensively used in hospitals and in factories as first aid to the injured. It is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time.

Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that soft bunches, goitre, swollen glands and wens are reduced. It is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Your druggist can supply you. Advt.

News Notes From Movieland

Marion Davies was a fortunate young miss when she obtained the screen rights to "Little Old New York," a play which ran successfully on Broadway two seasons ago. I wonder why Mary Pickford did not think of it, or if she did think of it why she did not take it, for it seems to be the kind of play that Mary likes. She can be a tomboy and a perfect lady, act cute and dress prettily.

Miss Davies has been working in the picture for some weeks and from all accounts she makes as attractive boy-girl in the picture as Genevieve Tobin did in the play. As Patricia O'Day, just arrived from Old Erin in 1810, she masquerades as a boy for many months and, of course, falls in love with her guardian after many amusing situations.

Hobart Bosworth is a talented painter. Although he made his popular reputation on the stage, his studio in a remodeled stable was the center of Los Angeles Bohemian life. Now he is playing in "The Eternal Three."

Grand — "The Nth Commandment" said to be an excellent photo play, a Cosmopolitan production for Paramount written by Fanny Hurst, and directed by Frank Borzage, director of "Humoresque," is now being shown. The theme is appealing and the situations highly thrilling. Colleen Moore and James Morrison interpret the leading roles.

American—"Hungry Hearts," is a picture that is appealing in it's theme, and is big in story and real as life itself, and utterly beautiful in character of it's production. It is the heart craving, the passionate outpouring of the spirit, the soul of humanity throbbing on the screen. The story is by Anzia Yezlerska, and tells of the Russian immigrant's struggles in this country. It is a brilliant human document that is worth seeing.

Dreamland — Another episode of "Speed," a complete picture in itself. Also a comedy, an extra film and the world's pictures of events of the week.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Golden Dip — Trim crust from six slices of bread, toast on both sides and dip each slice in a deep dish containing a little hot milk, in which a tablespoon of butter has been melted. When moistened, take out, sprinkle with salt and lay in another dish. Take a quart of milk, bring to boiling point and thicken with two tablespoons of cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk. Stir in two tablespoons of butter; when melted add beaten yolks of three eggs and pour over toast in dish.

Baked Sweet Potatoes—Six medium sized sweet potatoes, five tart apples, three-quarter tablespoon butter or margarine, three-quarter teaspoon brown sugar or syrup, one-third cup water. Parboil potatoes until nearly tender. Drain, peel and cut in one-half-inch slices. Peel and core apples and cut in one-third-inch slices crosswise. Put a layer of potatoes close together in a greased shallow baking dish. Cover with a layer of apples. Sprinkle with sugar and dot with bits of butter. Add water and bake until apples and potatoes are tender—about thirty-five minutes. You all know candied sweet potatoes and have your own favorite way of preparing them. Have you ever mashed the potatoes, seasoned them well, then put a layer of marshmallows on the top. Put back into the oven until the marshmallows are browned. When serving mashed white potatoes, make a little well in the center of the potatoes, put a generous amount of butter in the well. Sprinkle with paprika. If your family objects to paprika under the impression that it is hot cayenne, assure them that it has practically no flavor. Cooking develops a sweetish taste that is not apparent until heat has been applied. But we use it largely for its looks.

Bran Muffins—This recipe makes two dozen. One half cup of sugar, one scant cup lard or butter, two eggs, one cup sour milk, pinch of salt, two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder in flour, two cups bran, one-half cup of boiling water, one teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in water.

Old-Fashioned Hermits—One and a half cups brown sugar, one-half cup molasses, one-half cup sour milk, with one even teaspoon soda stirred in, one-half cup shortening, two well beaten eggs, three cups flour, one cup chopped raisins, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one-half nutmeg. Flour the raisins. Drop from a spoon far apart. Watch them closely when baking, as they burn easily.

Japanese Chicken—Cut a tender chicken in small pieces and lay them in a deep pot with a cutup carrot, potato and parsnip. Just cover with boiling water and add enough Japanese shoya sauce to flavor, and a teaspoon of sugar. Cover these ingredients and let them simmer until the chicken is tender, skimming from time to time. Serve the chicken with boiled rice. A gravy may be made of the liquid in which the chicken was cooked.

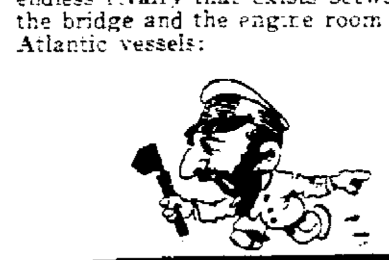

SUGGESTIONS

Add a little soda to the water in which you wash the greasy cooking utensils and see how much labor you save.

Clean your patent leather shoes with milk or a little sweet oil. If the shoes have been wet and the leather has hardened, soften them with vaseline.

DINNER STORIES

Keith Preston of the Chicago News retails this story, related by William McFee to illustrate the endless rivalry that exists between the bridge and the engine room on Atlantic vessels:

A certain captain and his chief engineer, tired of endlessly debating which the ship could the more easily dispense with, decided to swap places for a day. The chief ascended to the bridge and the skipper dived into the engine room. After a couple of hours at most the captain suddenly appeared on deck covered with oil and soot, bruised as to one eye and generally the worse for wear.

"Chief!" he called, wildly beckoning with a monkey wrench. "You'll have to come down here at once. I can't seem to make her go."

"Of course you can't," said the chief, calmly removing his pipe from his mouth. "She's ashore."—Kansas City Star.

Representative Joseph W. Fordney (Republican) of Michigan is considered the best story teller in the house. In tariff contests and debates he and the late Ebenezer J. Hill of Connecticut, a sturdy New England Republican, always locked horns over the textile schedule. They were constantly at loggerheads on this subject, but were personal friends. Mr. Fordney finally gave Mr. Hill a knockout when he composed and recited the following couplet:

"Twixt Hill and Hell there is but one letter:
If Hill were in Hell this bill would be better."

Stopping in a small town a travelling man said to a prospective customer:

"It has been twenty years since I was here last. Many buildings gone up since then?"

"No," replied the resident, "none that I know of."

"Any new railroads or street cars?"

"No."

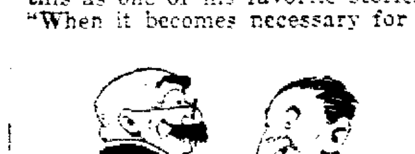

"Planning any improvements?"

"No."

"Well," said the traveling man, "I've been all over this country, and this is the first town I have seen that is what you might call actually finished."—Youngstown Telegram.

From a Missouri exchange—"Roaring River City lifted her head on her own shadowy mountains, the stars pushed the curtains from the blue flies above her, and the angels peep through and smile at her delight, as she tucks her dainty wrapper around her knees and dabbles her dimpled feet in the clear, cold water of Roaring River."—Boston Transcript.

William A. Winburn, president of Central Railway of Georgia, tells this as one of his favorite stories: "When it becomes necessary for a railway to borrow money the story of the young man who endeavored to float a loan without collateral or indorsers appeals strongly to me. He was so crest fallen at the banker's refusal to entertain his proposition that the financier relented slightly and put him to another test.

"The banker related that in early youth he had suffered the loss of an eye, but was determined not to go through life disfigured and had had the best artisan of Europe to fashion him a glass optic that had successfully defied detection as the natural one!"

"'Now,' said the banker, 'if you can tell me which is my glass eye and which is my natural eye I will consider that you are smart enough to make good use of the money and will loan it to you on your plain note.' Without an instant's hesitation the applicant picked the left eye as the manufactured one.

"The surprised banker asked how he had done something which so many others had failed to do, and the young man replied: 'Oh, that was easy. When I first asked you for the loan the glass eye had a slightly more sympathetic look than the natural one!'"

WITH WOMEN OF TODAY

OUR WOMEN LAWMAKERS

Miss Marian Griffin is the only woman member of the house of representatives in the "Perfect 36" as Tennessee has been called since becoming the thirty-sixth state to adopt the Nineteenth Amendment. She planned to put an iron-clad law against all divorce on the statute books of her state. To date, however, little has been heard of her divorce ideas as she has been busy working for the acceptance of the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner act. She recently presided over the session which discussed this question and presented a petition signed by 50,000 citizens asking acceptance. Both houses accepted the terms and there are now twenty-six states which have approved the provisions of the maternity and infancy act.

POMEROY, April 24.—Fruit growers here say that the apple trees in the eastern part of the county are nearly two weeks behind their regular spring schedule, and that this means a record fruit crop for this year. Cherries are in the same situation, they say, but peaches are not such a good prospect.

LIMA, April 24.—Charges of brutality against Lima police have been made by Earl Carter, alias John Miller, 16-year-old Waynesfield boy, arrested in Morehead, Ky., after he, George Kelly and a girl named Stella Campbell had attempted to dispose of a stolen auto for $50. The boy charges that he was struck with a blackjack when he refused to confess.

LIMA, April 24.—War risk insurance totaling approximately $9,000 and a soldier bonus of $125 awaits the legal heir to the estate of Donald Edward Miller, soldier who died in a Hoboken, N. J., hospital in May, 1919. Eldon J. Miller, a brother, now said to be in California, may claim the estate. The mother of the dead soldier died last fall, and the father, Daniel Miller, disappeared in 1902.

TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT

Bathrooms and "Venus at the Bath" fail to halt the liquor squad of Martins Ferry police when they are on a hot trail. In a recent raid, shortly after midnight, three officers entered the home of William Reed. As they entered, one of the officers caught a glimpse of a woman hastily ascending the stairs to the second floor. The officer went up the stairs on the jump. A couple of rooms proved to be empty, but when he tried the bathroom door, a woman's voice answered. The officer demanded that she open the door. The woman said she was taking a bath.

The policeman warned her to get on some clothing mighty quick, and then hearing a steady gurgle in the tub, stepped back and crashed the lock. Inside a woman fully dressed was about to empty the last half gallon of a supply of alleged whiskey down the bathtub drain.

EXPEDITION PHOTOGRAPHS SUN'S ECLIPSE

These photos have just reached the U. S. from the Crocker eclipse expedition which went to Wallal, Australia to obtain pictures and scientific data on the Solar Corona. Prof. W. W. Campbell, director of Lick observatory, heads the expedition. The Solar Corona itself was 40,000 miles wide. From it four long streamers extended, one reaching 2,500,000 miles from the sun's center.

That such an expedition entails hardships and inconveniences is indicated by the photo above. The "observatory" was set up in the open country where the scientists could work uninterrupted by the public. Tents housed the valuable instruments. Records were written on packing cases.

 TODAY'S BRIGHT SPOT ***

Having something up her sleeve saved Mrs. Fred Graves $400, or rather, saved that amount for Mr. Graves, who now believes in turning all his money over to his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Graves were coming home from their store in Barnesville late in the evening with the receipts of the day. Mrs. Graves was carrying $400 in the sleeve of her coat, on the arm in which she was also carrying groceries.

Two young bandits pointed guns at the couple and ordered the man to hold up his hands. They obtained a wallet containing $20 from his pocket, jumped into an auto and escaped. Mrs. Graves was not molested.

The two said they would recognize the robbers as the holdup took place almost directly beneath a street light.

How is it possible to give you quality at the low cost of 10 cents for 50 cigarettes?

ANSWER: The government tax alone on 50 machine-made cigarettes is 15 cents—5 CENTS MORE THAN THE COST OF 50 "BULL" DURHAM CIGARETTES TO YOU!

The average smoker saves $1 to $1.50 a week by "rolling his own" from "Bull"—or from $52 to $78 a year. This makes quite a Christmas fund—or pays for a fine trip.
